StudentAid.gov is now the only site to create FSA ID

To make StudentAid.gov a one-stop location for all federal financial aid functions, the Department of Education announced it has retired the previous website used for creating an FSA ID.

The FSA ID is the username and password used by students and parents to log in to the StudentAid.gov website or mobile app to apply for federal financial aid by completing the Free Application for Federal Student Aid (FAFSA).

In the past, students and parents have gone to FSAID.ed.gov to create a username and password, but in 2019 most customers created and managed their FSA IDs using StudentAid.gov and the myStudentAid mobile app. The FSAID.ed.gov website is now retired and any legacy FSAID.ed.gov website links are being redirected to StudentAid.gov. The automatic redirects will be in place for at least one year.
